Threadworms/ Pinworms

Threadworms are tiny worms in your poo. They're common in children and spread easily. You can treat them without seeing your GP. Incidents of threadworms are quick common, especially in the winter months. It's all a bit embarrassing to talk about but here are the facts:

Check if it's threadworms

1. You can spot worms in your poo. They look like white cotton thread.
2. You might also see them around your child's bottom (anus). The worms usually come out at night while your child is sleeping.

Other symptoms can include:

3. Extreme itching around the anus or vagina, particularly at night irritability and waking up during the night.
4. Irritated skin around the anus.
5. weight loss.

A pharmacist can help with threadworms

You can buy medicine for threadworms from pharmacies. This is usually a chewable tablet or liquid you swallow. Treat everyone in your household, even if they do not have symptoms.

Things you should do at home

Medicine kills the threadworms, but it does not kill the eggs. Eggs can live for up to 2 weeks outside the body.

There are things you can do to stop becoming infected again.

Important

You do not need to stay off school, nursery or work with threadworms.

How threadworms spread

Threadworms spread when their eggs are swallowed. They lay eggs around your anus, which make it itchy. The eggs get stuck on your fingers when you scratch.

They can then pass on to anything you touch, including:

- Clothes
- toys
- toothbrushes
- kitchen or bathroom surfaces
- bedding
- Food

Eggs can then pass to other people when they touch these surfaces and touch their mouth. They take around 2 weeks to hatch. Children can get worms again after they've been treated for them if they get the eggs in their mouth. This is why it's important to encourage children to wash their hands regularly.
